Certified PPP Professional (CP3P) Level 1 Foundation Course

Course Outline

What does the CP3P Level 1 Foundation Course cover?

The CP3P Level 1 Foundation Course is aimed at those working at a basic level of PPP implementation, with little or no prior experience, as well as those with an interest in PPP's. It aims to standardize their knowledge of the PPP process and terminology, as described in the PPP Guide.

The CP3P Level 1 Foundation Course will enable you to recall, recognize and demonstrate understanding of the established procedures, roles and institutional responsibilities that determine how the Government selects, implements and manages PPP projects, as outlined in the PPP Guide, including terms used, process sequences and roles involved.

You will learn how to:

- Identify the basic features and ideologies of PPP project finance
- Explain the major sources of PPP project funding, its benefits and limitations
- Explain how to set up a new PPP Framework or, where an existing framework is in place, what to look for to make sure it is effective
- Describe the Phases in the PPP Process: Identifying Projects and Preparatory Activities, Appraising the Project, Structuring the Procurement Process and the Contract, Tender and Award, and Managing the Contract.

Governments around the world now understand that public-private partnerships (PPPs) can be an important option to help meet infrastructure and basic service needs while contributing to a reduction in poverty. By bundling construction and service delivery, PPPs offer the possibility of improved accountability, greater innovation, and long-term efficiencies.

However, to get the hoped-for benefits of PPPs, public sector officials and managers need to develop and maintain skills and capacities to identify, assess, and procure PPPs – and, once the project is up and running, to manage the contract and regulatory requirements.

The Foundation certification is a pre-requisite for one or both of the next two certifications; the Certified PPP Professional (CP3P) Level 2 Preparation and the Certified PPP Professional (CP3P) Level 3 Execution.

If a candidate sits all three exams and completes them successfully, they can be awarded the CP3P Professional credential from APMG.

Who it's for?

Is the CP3P Level 1 Foundation Course right for me?

Specialists involved in all phases of PPP projects – including public sector employees, advisors, and financial and legal experts, among many others – will benefit tremendously from pursuit of the CP3P credential. - Learn the common language of PPP so the whole supply chain uses a uniform language
- Be recognized as a leader in promoting standards in PPP
- Work in an established and structured approach with supporting templates
- Includes elements of finance to help with procurement
- Ideal for construction projects

The benefits are better working practices and common standards and knowledge across the organization and supply chain. Ad hoc training costs are reduced significantly, and the option of online and workshop training, gives flexibility to all potential students.

Why obtain a CP3P Qualification?

A public-private partnership, known for short as a PPP, describes the process of when a government collaborates with a company in the private sector. PPP's are a fundamental part of society as they allow governments to fund, build and manage a variety of different public services that otherwise may be unable to deliver. As governments grapple with the effect of the COVID-19 pandemic on their budgets it is likely there will be a significant growth in the number of public-private partnerships in the near future.

Through the CP3P Level 2 Preparation Course private sector candidates will benefit from a greater understanding of the PPP concept as an asset or business opportunity. Not only will acquiring the APMG CP3P certification give you the knowledge and skills to speak the common international language used to deliver PPP's, it will also bring international credibility to your career.

Many Public Private Partnerships end in failure. There are many reasons for this. But the globally recognised CP3P accreditation sponsored by the World Bank helps to minimise the likelihood of failure by identifying the key characteristics of a good PPP, and describing and stepping through tried and tested best practice processes. The curriculum enables the right project to be identified, appraised, procured and successfully delivered. It also provides a common international language that is understood by the private and public sectors alike. If you are, or wish to be a PPP practitioner, CP3P accreditation is a must!
